THE BRAZILIAN EXCHANGE STUDENT

TELMA GUIMARÃES

Illustrated by Estúdio Kiwi

Daniel is an exchange student from Brazil. He is now living with Jim and Letitia George in Lake City, South Carolina.

His American brothers are Jeremy and Timothy. Jeremy is thirteen and Tim is fifteen, the same age as Daniel.

They all have lunch at the school cafeteria. Classes begin at seven in the morning and end at four in the afternoon. When they have gym classes, the girls are always around to watch them.

Daniel was afraid to be left out but his brothers introduced him to a lot of people. At first, he didn't know his classmates' names but he learned quickly.

Daniel thinks American breakfasts are much better than Brazilian breakfasts. They have scrambled eggs, toast, butter, bagels, cereal and milk, and waffles and syrup.

Tim told Daniel that Jeremy used to have a girlfriend but they broke up a few weeks ago. She's their next-door neighbor but Daniel hasn't met her yet.
